NIGHT DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON.

The Final Impeachment Vote—Shrinking to Sixty Days' Postponement—The Question Undecided—Probable Result of the Vote.

Special Dispatch to the Louisville Journal.

WASHINGTON, May 12.

It is very evident that the friends of impeachment, with some desperate exceptions, approach with fear and trembling and act on the weakness of those they are plying. They well know that there is far more involved than the conviction or the acquittal of the President. They know that to convict him, with law, justice, evidence, and popular opinion against them, is to stamp themselves and their party with infamy in the eyes of the world. They know that to do this, which the voice of justice and of the people demands that they should do, is to sign the death warrant of their party. To prevent the falling to pieces of that party through the destructive agency of its own innate corruption; to secure its triumph in November next, the friends of the South and to the national vengeance upon the man who has interposed his constitutional authority to prevent the Africanization of the South—this was for these objects that the impeachment was inaugurated; and now that radical Senators are敢 to vote for conviction at the expense of perjured souls, they shudderingly shrink back from the roll of infamy into which that act must hurl them.

NOTION TO DEFER ACTION.

They are bewildered by the magnitude of the act which is demanded at their hands, and they wish for time to think. In six days, Mr. Edmunds moved a postponement of the vote for sixty days. Within these two months the Chicago Convention will be held, and there are many influential radicals, both in Congress and out of it, who desire to have the matter deferred until after the meeting of that body. And I think it likely it will be done. The decision upon the vote of the 12th, Mr. Edmunds will be made this morning, and there is little doubt that the motion will be carried.

PROBLEMS.

Many intelligent men here are of the opinion that the vote will end simply in a vote of censure. Both the President and the country could, I think, stand such a result as that.

SECOND DESPATCH.

Special Dispatch to the Journal.

WASHINGTON, May 12.

The Senate, or high court of impeachment, adjourned this morning until Saturday, and the friends of impeachment are by surprise and created universal disappointment. The excuse made for the proceeding was Senator Howard's illness; but it was a poor and false excuse. If a Senator, friendly to the President, had been ill, you may be sure that there would have been no adjournment. And had he but a single vote, and yet there is a real adjournment of four days on his account. Howard, I have no doubt, could have been got to the Senate to-day even if his illness was not assumed for a purpose, but, even if an adjournment of a half day or a whole day was thought necessary and proper, it would have been had on Tuesday morning to Saturday was out of all reason. The undutiful truth is that the radicals saw that if the vote upon the question of the President's conviction should be taken to-day, the result would be disastrous to their wishes, their hopes, and their political fortunes, and they had taken four days to try what political engineering of all kinds can accomplish.

CROWDED GALLERIES—TWENTY-DOLLAR TICKETS.

The galleries of the Senate were crowded with ladies, diplomats, &c., the greatest curiosity, interest, and anxiety in regard to the result being felt by all. The galleries were broken by whispers. Tickets of admission had been sold extensively at twenty dollars each. When the extraordinary postponement was announced, great interest was the feeling evinced. The action impressed all most unfavorably. It created, however, by no means, any successfully concealed, of underhanded and dishonorable and corrupt action. The radical cause is badly damaged.

THE RADICAL FORLORN HOPE.

The radicals, however, profess expectation of final success. If they don't obtain it, it will not be for the non-use of their wiles, but they will be compelled to build their hopes upon the seventh article of impeachment—but in this they are only clinging to straws to go at last, straws and all, to the bottom of the stream.

THIRD DESPATCH.

Special Dispatch to the Louisville Journal.

DEFLECTION AMONG RADICAL SENATORS.

WASHINGTON, May 12.

It is asserted that Fessenden, Fowler, Frelinghuysen, Henderson, Grimes, Trumbull, and Norton, and Van Winkle, will vote against the article of impeachment. I am strongly inclined to believe it. The Senators mentioned are among the ablest, most candid, and most statesmanlike members of the body to which they belong, and they have much pride of character. Besides, they are very silent as to their views, and in this they are only clinging to straws to go at last, straws and all, to the bottom of the stream.

FOURTH DESPATCH.

Special Dispatch to the Louisville Journal.

DEFLECTION AMONG RADICAL SENATORS.

WASHINGTON, May 12.

The election of Fessenden, Fowler, Frelinghuysen, Henderson, Grimes, Trumbull, and Norton, and Van Winkle, to vote against the article of impeachment, I am strongly inclined to believe it. The Senators mentioned are among the ablest, most candid, and most statesmanlike members of the body to which they belong, and they have much pride of character. Besides, they are very silent as to their views, and in this they are only clinging to straws to go at last, straws and all, to the bottom of the stream.

LEXINGTON, May 12.

The attendance at the races to-day was quite good, notwithstanding the heavy rain. The race was sweepstakes, for colts and fillies, and a mile and a half to the play or play, the club to add $500. The race was won by Grand Duchess. The time—57.40. The race was run by the judges to a length, but the judges gave the race to Grand Duchess because of foul riding by Ford.

OHIO.

Election of Police Commissioners for Toledo—Radical Indignation and Democratic Rejection over Impeachment at Columbus.

TOLEDO, May 12.

The election of police commissioners for this city, rendered necessary by a recent action of the Ohio Legislature, took place to-day, resulting in the choice of Rep. R. D. Woodward, Mr. C. C. Edwards, and Mr. W. C. Deller. The Republicans also elected two school commissioners, without opposition.

COLUMBUS, May 12.

Great indignation was felt among the Republicans at the action of some of their Senators in the impeachment case. The Democracy are jubilant.

THE ABSORING QUESTION.

The question of the final decision absorbs every other here. Nothing else is talked of or thought of. All interest in other matters is for the time suspended. The question is intense, beyond description.

ACQUITTANCE OF CONGRESS.

The Senate will probably concur with the House in adjourning from Saturday next to the 23d instant, in order to give all hands a chance to attend the Chicago Convention.

LEXINGTON RACES.

Third Day's Sport—Interesting Two-mile Contest—The Favorite Again Vanquished.

Special Dispatch to the Lexington Journal.

LEXINGTON, Ky., May 12.

Notwithstanding the incessant rain all day the sport was interesting. The race was sweepstakes for colts and fillies four years old, two-mile heats, with nine entries. The first started with the result—Oscar, Gen. Grant, and the Grand Duchess.

Judge Chandler stated that his colleague, Mr. Howard, was ill. Out of his motion it was decided that the Court adjourn till Saturday.

The Senate then called to order. Mr. Drane moved to adjourn until Monday. Mr. Edmunds moved to adjourn until Friday.

Mr. Edmunds moved to adjourn until Friday.

Mr. Sherman, Anthony, and Hurd opposed, and Messrs. Drake, Morton, and Yates favored the proposition, which was finally laid aside, while various other motions were being voted on.

After a long discussion and the passing of the District of Columbia charter bill, the Senate adjourned at 12:30.

The Speaker presented a letter from General Grant, giving the number of the Southern States.

Arrived—Belieuse, Harper's Ferry, and Autolope, St. Paul; Library No. 4, Ohio river.
